THOSE VENTILATORS

The topic being discussed was where the newspapers obtained their information concerning the deliberations of the inquisitorial body.

One juror is said to have made the remark that if the ventilators in the room were plugged up, possibly the news leak would end.

Another juror of a skeptical mind, opined it was quite possible that ventilators appeared in the picture, but he had yet failed to find a ventilator that was a prophet. "Newspapers might possibly get information of what was discussed but how could they tell us beforehand what we were going to take up," he said.

This rejoinder apparently was a poser, for ventilators and prophets were dropped, and other matters more germane to the duties of the body were given attention.

RAISES DISCUSSION

The proposal that has been offered to the supervisors by the medical society of the county, that the doctors be the sole arbiters of the conduct of the county hospital, and be permitted to determine who shall, and who shall not be admitted to the county institution, is causing much protest in different sections of the county by those who question a beneficent purpose. There are those who assert the institution is supported by the taxpayers of the county, and its administration should naturally reside in the hands of the board of supervisors, through the superintendent, whom they appoint.

Revenue Bond Measure Sent To Governor

SACRAMENTO, May 21.—When the revenue bond measure was introduced in the Assembly today when that body passed, 51 to 22, the Garrison-Jepson measure providing for creation of public utility districts and widespread issuance of revenue bonds.

The bill already approved by the Senate, provides for creation of public utility commissions within any political subdivisions or governmental agency, and authorizes issuance of revenue bonds by such commissions on a majority vote of the people.

As originally written, no vote of the people would have been required for authority to issue revenue bonds.

The utilities commissions would be empowered to acquire, extend, repair, replace and improve public utilities of any kind whatsoever.

The bill would permit utilities commissioners to issue bonds up to 25 percent of the capital investment of their projects for improvements, extensions, etc., without necessity of a vote of the people, unless a referendum were instituted.

Gas Tax Raise Granted Cities By State Senate

SACRAMENTO, May 21.—With only one dissenting vote, the Senate today passed a bill that allocates an additional quarter-cent of the gasoline tax to cities which now receive a quarter-cent of the gas tax. The vote was 34 to 1.

The action was taken after Senator Stow, Santa Barbara, had failed in an effort to have consideration of the bill sponsored by Senator Knowland, Alameda, and others, postponed. A motion to reconsider was made by Senator Seawell, Roseville, in behalf of Stow.

The bill passed today gives each city its share of one-quarter cent for expenditure on major city streets other than State highways. This money also will be apportioned on a population basis.

The bill will give the cities $3,000,000 additional each year.

UNION LABOR WITHDRAWS PICKET LINES

PORTLAND, Ore., May 21.

UP—Union labor withdrew picket lines from box and barrel factories today to save bumper crops of berries and fruit in Oregon and Washington, but refused further compromise in sawmills and logging camps.

Idle men in the Pacific Northwest's greatest walkout were reduced to about 30,000 when box factories reopened with union sanction in Portland, Gresham, Ore., and Puyallup, Wash.

LOGGERS STILL OUT

But 700 loggers struck near Shelton, Wash., and unless they return, soon 500 employees of the Shelton pulp mill must quit because of a log shortage.

Millhands at the St. Helens, Ore., plant of the McCormick Lumber company, who walked out yesterday when pickets from Portland, blew the whistle, did not return today.

SURPRISED AT ACTION

Labor chiefs were surprised when Governor Charles H. Martin of Oregon stepped into the situation, threatening to appoint special sheriffs in counties where elected officials are unable to protect life and property in industrial disputes, the governor added.

The use of either the State police or National Guard will be resorted to in instances of violence where local officers are unable to handle the situation. (Continued on Page 3)

CALOLS BEAT STANAVOS IN S. O. CONTEST

Charlie Culler's Calols added another victory to their string last night by defeating the Stanavos in a Standard Oil Twilight League game played at the First street park.

When the smoke of the battle cleared away, the Calols were sitting on top of the 5 to 2 score. Although the winners were held to only five hits, they made every one of them count for a run.

In the second inning, the Calols scored when Strader tripled and went home on Sinibaldi's error. Two more runs were scored in the fourth inning when White singled; Wilson got on by a fielder's choice; White going out at second base; Archer followed with a triple that scored Wilson, and Red Strader followed with another triple that scored Archer.

Two more runs were scored by the winners in the sixth inning. Wilson walked, Archer walked and Strader knocked out a double to score both men.

The Stanavos got their first score in the third inning when Johnson stepped up to the plate and smacked out a home run. Their second and last run came in the seventh inning. Campbell walked and Johnson scored him with a long hit into right field. Johnson was out trying to stretch his bingle into a triple.

Red Strader was heavy stick man for the winners. In three times at the plate he got three hits—two triples and a double, and scored one run. Archer got one hit in two official times at bat—a triple and scored one run. For the losers, Johnson and Little Sammy San Miguel shared hitting honors, both getting two bingles in three trips to the plate. Johnson got a homer and a single while San Miguel smacked out two singles.

DIZZY DEAN IS BANISHED FROM ST. LOUIS PARK

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—UP—Dizzy Dean was banished from Sportsman's Park by police today at the climax of what threatened to develop into a free for all fight between members of the St. Louis Cardinals and the Philadelphia Phillies.

Twice during progress of the game, brother Paul Dean, hurling for the Cardinals, hit Phils' batters with pitched balls, namely, Lou Chiozza in the fourth, and Al Todd in the fifth. That angered the Phils, who swarmed onto the field.

The Cardinals swarmed out when Dizzy, who was not in the game, leaped out of the dugout, ready for fistfuffs. Both times the umpires succeeded in restoring order, but Dizzy "rode" every Phil's batter so persistently that Umpire Rittler ordered him to leave the bench.

Dean adamantly refused. Barked, Rittler called a police captain, who conducted the elder Dean to the dressing room, far from the scene of hostilities.

The atmosphere was further muddled when Paul went to bat in the Cardinals' fourth and pitcher Orville Jorgens of the Phils whipped three necktie nippers inside. Dizzy didn't like the looks of them, and shouted his protest. The fourth was high and Paul walked.

After leaving the park, Dizzy sent word to the press box that he was not taken out by police, but went of his own accord.

There has been a long-standing feud between Manager Frank Frisch of the Cardinals and Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies.

The Los Angeles Angels opened a determined drive for first place in Coast League standings Tuesday as they routed Oakland, 14-5, to move closer to the league leaders.

The Angels rapped four Oakland pitchers for a total of 29 hits, scoring freely throughout the contest. A six run rally in the seventh inning put the game on ice.

Leroy Anton, Oakland first baseman, provided the only bright spot in his team's dismal afternoon as he connected squarely with one of Roy Joiner's tosses to home in the first inning.

At Hollywood, the Missions barely nosed out the Stars, 9-5. In a game that was fought evenly from the start, The Missions used four pitchers, picked for 13 safes, with the Stars using three in their attempt to halt the Mission batfest.

LIVING SCALE OF FAMILIES IS HIT HARD

WASHINGTON, May 21.—U. S. Public Health Service tonight announced that the depression hit the American people's health.

A survey of sickness and income showed that those families which suffered most during the depression also had the most sickness. Those on private and public relief were sick more than any other class.

Although the death rate during the depression years declined, the public health service sent its own experts into 10 representative localities to survey the poorer sections. Actual slums were excluded. Their job was to obtain statistics on the actual number of days lost through sickness. This information is not ordinarily available to health authorities.

The communities included Baltimore, Birmingham, Brooklyn, Cleveland, Detroit, Manhattan, Pittsburgh, Syracuse, a coal mining section near Morgantown, W. Va., and cotton mill villages near Greenville, S. C.

The largest number of days of disabling sickness were reported among those families which had been able to afford radios and possibly an automobile in the prosperous days of 1929, but had lost the depression swollen relief rolls, because loss was scarce. That group which had lost most to the customary standard of living because of hard times was sick more than the chronic poor.

Next came those poor folk who never had much either during the peak of the boom period or during the worst of the depression.

The classes which fared best in the battle against sickness were those groups classified as comfortable or moderately well off.

Figures in the survey supported the conclusion that illness is associated with sudden change in the standard of living. The statistics showed that those who dropped from the so-called comfortable living in 1929 to the poor class in the depression's depth had nine percent more days of sickness than those who had been poor all the time.

"Individuals in families supported by public or private relief exhibited a higher illness rate than those in other groups," the survey said. "This finding was true for children as well as for adults and in general for respiratory and non-respiratory illnesses, with the exception of the communicable diseases of childhood."

"Whatever the implications of the results, the fact remains that illness was more prevalent among those who could least afford this handicap."

Tanker Strike Settlement Is Being Discussed

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—UP.—Federal arbitrators attempting to settle the three-month-old tanker strike met with union officials for the first time today.

Dr. Louis J. Roch, secretary of the committee, said there had been no definite plans as yet to bring both sides together in the same conference room. The employers met with the board yesterday.

While the board would not say how soon it expected to work out an arbitration agreement that would send the men back to work pending final settlement, it was indicated such action would be speeded as rapidly as possible.

The first step, it was believed, would be to obtain formal employer approval of the arbitration proceedings. So far, the tanker group has refused to consider arbitration.

EMPLOYEES TO PROTEST DISMISSALS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—SERA.—Administrative employees who lose their jobs must be given a reason for dismissal in writing, Frank V. McLaughlin, SERA Administrator, ruled today. The new order is effective in area and county administrations as well as the State.

Following dismissal the employee can file a written protest to the local director and request a hearing before a Board of Review, the board to comprise three members, the heads of the Social Service, work and accounting divisions. Unless the board rules the request is not justified a hearing will follow.

At the hearing the complaining worker will be given full opportunity to present his case.

The findings and recommendations of the board, McLaughlin ruled, shall be transmitted to the local director who shall put the recommendations into effect at once unless, in his opinion, they are not warranted by facts and the rules and regulations of SERA. In the latter case he shall transmit a full report to the State Administrator, for final decision.

Similar procedure shall be followed in the State Administration but if the Administrator fails to concur in the recommendations of the State Board of Review he may refer the matter to the State Relief commission.

Proper Supply of Vitamins Is Necessary in Baby's Food Budget

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

WE HAVE just been privileged to have our local dietitians hear first hand from a director of the Department of Nutrition in a leading university, Dr. Mary Schwartz Rose, of Columbia, not only writes with clarity and in simple language on how to feed our families, but she speaks in the same direct, understandable manner.

It is easy to believe that what she says in regard to the latest findings in nutritional values is something that should be repeated to all who are responsible for providing our daily food. Here are some of the important items either newly affirmed or recently determined.

The modern child has an opportunity for healthy living that was never known before. More education, more supervision, less dependence on chance; better housing, and more adequate feeding have all played a part in this advanced and improved condition.

Bringing up babies is not a mere act of parentage or of civilization. The modern mother needs at least a dozen volumes of information and a blue print for her part. England is especially proud of her record, having achieved the supply of 2-3 pint of milk daily to each child. Her record of infant mortality, decades ago, was three deaths out of every four babies. Her rate now is a fraction of one per cent. due, they believe, to the use of foods that build tissue and promote resistance.

VITAMIN A is the special protection against infection. The organ of storage of this vitamin is in the liver. The new born child has Vitamin A in the cholelstrum, but there is very little stored. Growth in the supply of Vitamin A should be very rapid, reaching a multiple of thirty by the end of three weeks. This increase may be secured by the use of the vitamins are now procurable in special forms and Vitamin A is available in cod liver oil. The milk from cows that are newly fresh is also rich in Vitamin A.

A deficit in nutrition in the child at birth cannot be replaced without disadvantage. The mother diet preceding the advent of the child must insure the child's possession of the necessary elements for growth.

Her nutrition will also determine the quality of the milk she provides for her child after birth. This Vitamin A is a specific against the contraction of colds and protects against the ravages of having a cold.

THERE was an exciting moment in the nutritional world last December when Dr. R. Williams of Columbia succeeded in isolating pure Vitamin B. These latest findings are rather surprising to the housewife who prides herself upon her leaves of fine-grained, snow-white bread.

The current process of producing white flour is likely to reduce the content of Vitamin B. Dr. Rose predicts that a really white flour will soon be on the market in which the proper proportion of Vitamin B has been restored.

Meat is it best provided by the whole grain cereals and can be given to infants by adding grain gruels to the baby's milk.

It is nothing new to be told that we must have Vitamin C, and that we can get it from lady on in the form of tomato or orange juice. It may not be so generally understood that a lack of Vitamin C shows a deficit first in the walls of the blood vessels. In truth, this vitamin exerts an influence on all the cells of the tissues of the body.

Poor circulation, a bad skin, loss of appetite, all indicate a deficiency of Vitamin C. When tomatoes and oranges set beyond our budget, the potato is still the vegetable's dear friend. Some of us think it isn't a meal without potatoes. We leave other vitamins for tomorrow.

A steel case cabinet that fits on any standard size bath room or kitchen sink has been developed. This is possible because the legs are adjustable. It has a baked-on white enamel finish. The cabinet is for bottles, toilet water, soap, a door receptacle for cleaning equipment.

A window which faces the east of another building and gets no sunlight may be given the effect of perfect sunshine if properly curtained. The hanging is a case made of thin strips of rayon gauze.

Zoe Akins Has Had Checkered Career

By TALBOT LAKE

THE battle of the Pulitzer Prize winners breaks out anew. Zoe Akins, whose play, "The Old Maid," received this year's award, is the center of a controversy among critics. Some say she should not have got the prize because her play is an adaptation of an Edith Wharton novel, while others hold that her handling of the theme and the dialogue entitle her to win first honors.

It is not the first time Miss Akins has been the cynosure of disagreement. She has had a singularly checkered career as a dramatist. Considered a playwright of the first water, she has, nevertheless, seen some of her most serious efforts flop at the box office, while others dashed off in more hit-or-miss fashion have registered as money-makers.

Back in 1929 she put out "Deceit" for Ethel Barrymore, and this piece put her on top as a writer for the theater. It was a glamorous and somewhat sentimental play about a woman who tried to keep up appearances after her husband had passed. It made a popular success. Heartened by this encouragement, she delved seriously into her craft and came up with "The Texas Nightingale" in 1932. This was considered a much more worthy piece of work, but it failed.

"The Furies," starring Laurette Taylor in 1933, was very well liked by critics, but also failed financially. On the other hand the somewhat facetious "The Greeks Had a Name for It" was but faintly praised by the critics and made a mint at the box office.

"The Old Maid," which is the story of a bitter struggle between two sisters for the love of an illegitimate child of one of them, carries on the Akins tradition. When it opened on Broadway not a first-line critic was present to review it, and some papers did not bother to send a representative until after it had been on the boards a week. The play, however, had an especial appeal for women and matinees helped swell the proceeds.

Miss Akins, who was born in Missouri, wants to be shown if it is possible to please both the critics and the audience at the same time.

Eye Make-up Is Used More For Daytime

By JACQUELINE HUNT

ALL of us probably have, among our acquaintances, two women who are equally blessed with pretty features, with pretty clothes and the things that ordinarily count so much for feminine beauty. Yet when we study them casually, we see that one of them is really exciting and lovely and the other plain and disappointing.

Why? What makes all the difference? You will find it in the eyes. The eyes of one are alert, sparkling, interested in everyone and everything about them. They give warmth and animation to the entire face. They give beauty to their owner, make her interesting because they are interested.

The other woman lacks personality because her eyes are dull and heavy. She finds no challenge in life or in her job whether it is keeping house or caring for her children or working in an office.

You cannot go through life like that and get much out of it. If your eyes are dull, find something that will give them a new sparkle, and it will make you a much more responsive, attractive person.

Of course, you should help along that inner sparkle by taking excellent care of your eyes and learning all of the newest tricks of eye make-up. Eye make-up is being used more and more for daytime wear. Of course, it is used sparingly, so the effect is subtle rather than startling.

Your eye make-up really begins with your foundation—if you use one. Do not apply it too thickly over the eyes. And when you powder, keep the powder well away from the eye area, so that the skin of the upper and lower lids is left moist and slightly darker than your face.

It is smart to smooth a tiny bit of oil or cream on the upper lids to make them moist-looking. Then if you use shadow you will find that it blends more smoothly and evenly. A soft shading of blue, blue-violet, bronze or gray is usually more subtle for daytime use. Apply the shadow only outward and up toward the top of the upper lids, beginning over the iris of your eye and carried brows and temples.

A time-table of beauty events for brides who want to be glamorous is contained in the leaflet, "Beauty For Spring Brides." Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you would like a copy.

For the Beach

The latest in beach coats is this long, white linen number worn by Carole Lombard, film star. It belongs to Carole's personal wardrobe, and is worn over a suit of navy blue crepe shorts and a halter top. The revers and the sash on the coat match the fabric from which the brief garments underneath are made. The large hat is white leghorn.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "The muscles of my abdomen have become so flabby that my figure looks entirely out of proportion. Is there a simple exercise that will correct my sagging tummy and the roll of fat that has accumulated around my middle?"

ANSWER: "There is a simple, yet effective, if you practice it faithfully twice daily. Stand with your heels together and your arms at your sides. Raise your arms to shoulder level in front of you and keeping the legs together, bend your knees. Hold the position a few seconds and then using only the back and stomach muscles, try to return from the squatting position to the standing position. Let the arms drop slowly to your sides as you return to the original position. After you are accustomed to this exercise you should be able to do it about twenty times night and morning."

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "How does one congratulate a new acquaintance on his marriage? Is a letter of congratulation in order?"

ANSWER: "For such a relationship, it is enough to send one's visiting card bearing the words 'Heartiest congratulations.'"

QUESTION: "At what temperature should white wines be served? At what temperature should red wines be served?"

ANSWER: "White wines are served chilled. This is done to subordinate their high alcoholic content to their flavor. Red wines are served at room temperature to insure the utmost enjoyment from their fundamental taste."

White House Cook Favors Planking Fish

By JUDITH WILSON

PLANKING has always been considered by epicures to be the most delightful method of adding to the already delicious flavor of fish. Have a wooden plank and keep it for fish alone. Clean it with a brush after using, rinse with warm water and dry. Do not scrub with hot soapy water or you will dissolve out of it the thing for which it exists—its woody, subtle flavor. These cooking planks are used of oak or other hard wood and can be purchased at any department store.

Before using, heat the plank in a very hot oven, then remove and oil thoroughly. Place your fish fillets, steaks or whole split fish on the plank, skin side down. The fish should be soaked for three minutes in a strong salt solution, then dried and oiled thoroughly before placing on the plank. Next sprinkle with one tablespoon grated onion. The oven should be very hot when the cooking is begun. After ten minutes, reduce the heat and continue cooking for fifteen to twenty-five minutes, basting once or twice with four tablespoons melted butter to which one-fourth teaspoon pepper has been added.

DINNERS

Tomato Cocktails with Tiny Cucumber Sandwiches
Planked Shad with Mashed Potatoes
Green Peas in Turnip Cups
Wine Macaroni Pudding
Coffee
Jellied Consomme
Sautéed Chicken
Filet of Sole with Cheese Sauce
Mashed Potatoes
Grilled Tomatoes
Salad of Assorted Greens
Honey Fruit Tapioca
Tea with Lemon

The fish should be evenly and attractively browned. The size of the fish will determine the exact cooking time. About five minutes before the fish is done, surround it with mashed potatoes, well-seasoned and beaten until fluffy with cream. The potatoes will be more attractive if squeezed through a pastry tube. Other vegetables may be arranged on the plank when you remove it from the oven. Garnish with parsley or watercress and lay the plank on a platter or tray before taking it to the table.

Planked White Fish or Trout. This is a favorite recipe of Hornetta Nesbitt, housekeeper for the White House, on whose shoulders rests the task of seeing that the nation's problems are faced with a well-satisfied stomach.

The fish should weigh four or five pounds. Have it split and boned. Lay on a thick plank, skin side down. Cover the exposed part of the plank with salt to prevent scorching. Brush the fish generously with melted butter. Place under a rather slow broiling flame. Turn frequently so the fish will cook and brown evenly. This will take from twenty to twenty-five minutes. Tell it don't insert a fork and break the flakes of the fish without breaking them to see if it is cooked next to the plank. When ready to serve scrape the salt from the plank, surround with crisp watercress or any desired vegetable. Place the plank on a large platter.

With this serve a sauce made from mayonnaise well flavored with lemon juice, paprika and some finely cut chives.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

IT IS nothing unusual for a woman to detest housework, but when it falls to her to do it she had best approach it with no inhibitions and with as much knowledge as possible. Believe me, there are worse fates. Any sensible woman would prefer it to job hunting, for instance, and that's the occupation of many who would consider their own kitchen a seventh heaven.

You and Your Child

Know Your Own Child First

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

"MARRY, I want you to read this book," Dad addressed me with enthusiasm. "Hurry and get through with it then," and he made me feel like a mother.

I don't read a good novel in ages. "This is no novel. It is called 'The Fun of Having a Child' by Jane Herbert Goward. I did not believe that I could become interested in a book on the subject of rearing children. Usually they are too technical for me. But this author, Mrs. Katharine Seabury, is a mother who has brought up three children of her own successfully."

"I suppose that makes her an expert! These days anyone who can find the time to write about some experience he has had, whether it is having babies or taking trips, writes books. Here I am with five children, two full grown and the other growing up, and half the time I'm not sure in my own mind as to what's best for them. And it certainly is not for lack of experience."

Dad's expression softened. "You do your best. You're a good mother, Mary, but," he chose his words carefully, "you might be a better mother if you trusted your own ideas more and did not rely on the experts so much. Many parents with a smattering of knowledge of psychology try to be scientists in their own homes. They understand a few fundamental theories which they are just itching to try out on their children. They'd be better off using their own common-sense in most cases."

"I suppose Mrs. Seabury never read a book on psychology and that's why you approve of her book!"

"Quite the contrary. She has made a thorough study of child training and psychology. Without this background of knowledge she could not have written this book. It is significant of a whole-some point of view, that she calls raising a family 'a joyful struggle' instead of 'a fascinating study.' The book soundly considers the child from infancy through childhood, high school and college days. You already know a great deal about our children and this book will encourage you to use your own ideas too. The experts may know more about childhood generally, but after all they do not know our Agnes, Ada or Freddy!"

If you are not a 'good cook,' or cannot cook at all, there are recipes in the papers, well worth trying, and a number of reliable cook books from which one may learn. It requires patience and infinite pains, but any girl who does as she is told to do and uses the ingredients indicated, can cook—no doubt about it. Born cooks—and, of course, there are women and men, too—with a talent for cookery, can afford to experiment, but the average amateur had better follow directions to the letter.

As for cleaning, unless you have a vacuum, that is hard work. Why not have a woman in to do both laundry and cleaning? A good worker could do both in one day. A house thoroughly cleaned once a week should not be difficult to keep neat the rest of the time with daily dusting and straightening up.

If you do all this early in the morning after getting your breakfast dishes out of the way and if you prepare your vegetables and do everything you can toward dinner, you will find that you will have plenty of spare time during the day. It's the sort of housekeeper who lets the breakfast dishes pile up and who procrastinates getting her chores out of the way that never has any time for anything else. Systematize your work and you will find that you will have plenty of time for gardening or anything else you want to do.

in the chamber and the Kinfish, who hadn't had any dinner, made a point of no quorum. That meant a roll call had to be started.

HUEY IS OVERTAKEN

A Senate roll call takes from 10 to 15 minutes, ample time for Huey to grab a sandwich and get back to the Senate to resume his filibuster. Where he made his mistake was that he darted out of the chamber before the clerk had called the first name—that of Senator Alva Adams of Colorado.

Senator Tom Connolly, Democrat of Texas, was on his feet as Huey vanished through the door. He was recognized by Senator A. H. Hunt of Arizona who was presiding.

Before the quorum call was completed, Huey came back into the Senate to find Connolly in possession of the floor.

"I haven't finished my speech," the Kinfish protested.

RULED OUT OF ORDER

Huey appealed for another ruling from the chair and Garner again ruled him down. The Kinfish sat down. He prides himself on his parliamentary astuteness and what made him angry was that he had outsmarted himself by leaving the chamber ten seconds too soon.

Leader In Social Service And Peace Work Succumbs

CHICAGO, May 21.—UP—Jane Addams, world famous leader in social service and peace work, died tonight at Passavant hospital, where she had undergone a major abdominal operation.

She was 75 years old. She succumbed to cancer and intestinal obstructions, aggravated by a series of illnesses since childhood, combined with her advanced years and unrelenting work for the underprivileged.

The operation, to correct abdominal adhesions which were believed the result of a 1931 operation, was performed Saturday by Dr. Arthur Curtis after a consultation with Dr. James A. Briffon, her personal physician, and two other doctors.

FIRE TEACHER, RECALL PLAN FOR TRUSTEES

NAPA, May 21.—UP—Napa's controversy over discharge of David L. Harris, high school music teacher, reached the stage of a proposed recall against three school board members today.

Students were back at school after a one-day strike Friday which attempted to force Harris' reinstatement and their parents had taken up the fight.

Mrs. Carrie Baude, Dr. H. E. Dempsey and Robert C. Whitthorne, majority members of the board, would be the objects of the recall if it goes through. Threats to "set" the trio by a vote were heard as an excited special meeting of the school board last night broke up.

Two members of the board, Dr. S. A. Frost and Dr. A. C. Umcult voted for Harris. Principal Earl E. Crawford threatened demotion and grades discipline if the students did not remain in their classes.

Dates For Trial In Damage Suits Set By Courts

Superior Judge T. D. Johnston yesterday fixed the dates on which two suits will be tried by juries.

June 18 was set for the trial of a $27,500 suit filed by Theodore Field and Walter H. Field, Jr., through their guardian, Viola Field, against Guido Pacini and Ralph Davis.

Mrs. Field claims her children were injured November 30, 1931, when a car in which they were riding collided with a truck loaded with lumber and owned by the defendant.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—UP—The state railroad commission today refused to reverse a previous decision establishing the Western Canal company as a public utility. The company, a Pacific Gas and Electric company subsidiary, operates in Sacramento valley.

Hamblin asserts that he was hurt when he was struck by a car as he was riding a bicycle March 21, 1935 on the Happy Valley road.

DENIAL MADE OF FOLDUP OF P. C. LEAGUE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—UP—Threats of a fold-up of the Pacific Coast League were believed dispelled tonight following optimistic reports of directors of the eight clubs here today.

"Conditions throughout the league are far better than they have been in years," the directors reported at conclusion of the two and one-half hour meeting.

Represented at the meeting, called at the suggestion of Earl McNeely, president of the Sacramento club, were David Fleming and Oscar Fleming of Los Angeles; Bill Lane, Hollywood; Bill Klepper, Seattle; Roland A. Schaffer, son of E. J. Schaffer, president of the Portland Beavers; Victor Devenenzi of Oakland; Charles Graham, San Francisco, and Joe Bearwald of the Missions.

In explaining his action, McNeely told the directors his intentions was only to arrange for promotional attractions to increase attendance in Sacramento.

McNeely denied his club has any financial difficulties, and said they had no idea of disbanding for the season. He also declared he had no intention of renewing a reduction in admission prices.

The directors agreed that McNeely and others owners would be allowed to reduce admission prices on special occasions, but only with consent of the visiting club.

The split week series has resulted in extra traveling expenses it was reported, but the directors voted to continue the games on the present basis rather than revert to the former seven day stand.

At conclusion of the meeting, McNeely announced plans to slash his payroll by dropping players outright, rather than by cutting individual salaries.

Revenenzi, Oakland president, said receipts of the league leaders are up 50 percent as compared with last season, and that excellent returns were made in the series with Portland and Seattle despite the clubs' low standing.

STARTING ON AIRWAY FOR THE ORIENT

ALAMEDA, May 21.—UP—Officers and crew members of Pan American Airways' anti-air radio station construction force today began work at Wake Islands, third stop on the company's projected Trans-Pacific air route.

Advices from the steamer North Haven, carrying men and equipment would be started immediately.

Wake Island lies some 1200 miles beyond Midway, where a similar landing and radio station now is nearing completion. Other bases for the route will be at Honolulu, Guam and Manila.

Preparations were under way to dynamite an entrance to the large lagoon sheltered by the three islands of the Wake group, and bordered by a coral reef. Small boats took men and materials ashore at Wilkes Island pending blasting of the channel to permit entry of the North Haven.

Arrival of the 113 officers and crew workers marked start of the first permanent settlement on the islands.

During the day the giant Clipper plane used by the company to pioneer the first leg of the 8500 mile California to China route continued its test flights in the San Francisco bay region from its Alameda base. The plane, with a round trip to Honolulu already accomplished, may make a flight to Honolulu and on to Midway Islands within a few weeks.
